The platypus is an iconic semi-aquatic Australian animal living in rivers in eastern parts of Australia and Tasmania. It is a protected species but is not endangered.

It is among nature's most unlikely animals and is the only one of its kind in the world.

It has a duck bill and webbed feet, beaver tail, and otter body and fur. It uses its tail to store fat for food and not to propel its self through the water.

They are also unusual as the female lays eggs but feeds her offspring milk. Males are venomous. They have sharp stingers on the heels of their rear feet and can use them to deliver a strong toxic blow.

It is a solitary creature, the size of a small cat and lives for about 10 years.
